DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

1. Claims 1-3, and 5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Myers et al

With regard to claims 1 and 2, Myers et al (US 5,334,032) disclose a power supply switch comprising:

- a base body side connector (1) having a pin terminal (3);
- a movable body side connector (2) having a receptacle terminal (16);
- a terminal cover piece (6) urged by a resilient member (13).

Myers et al do not specify that the claimed connector is used in a motor vehicle.

It has been held that a recitation with respect to the manner in which a claimed apparatus is intended to be employed does not differentiate the claimed apparatus from a prior art apparatus satisfying the claimed structural limitations. Ex parte Masham, 2 USPQ2d 1647 (1987). In this case the structural features of the Myers connector do not prevent for utilization it in a motor vehicle (for example, in the vehicle which is used in electrically conductive environments)

With regard to claim 3, Myers et al disclose a flange a bottom surface the housing to position the resilient element.

With regard to claim 5, Myers et al disclose another flange (12).

2. Claim 6 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Myers et al in view of the admitted prior art.

Myer et al disclose all of the limitations except for a resilient member at the end of the tab terminal.

Art Unit: 2833

The admitted prior art (Fig. 5) discloses a resilient member (60) at the end of the tab terminal. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to provide the end of the tab terminal in Myers et al with the resilient member, as taught by the admitted prior art, to prevent dynamic impact during connection of the pins and the receptacles.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 07/23/2003 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. With regard to claim 1, Applicants argue that the claimed connector is used in a motor vehicle while Myers et do not specify that the claimed connector is used in a motor vehicle.

As it was shown in the rejection, a recitation with respect to the manner in which a claimed apparatus is intended to be employed does not differentiate the claimed apparatus from a prior art apparatus satisfying the claimed structural limitations. Ex parte Masham, 2 USPQ2d 1647 (1987). Myers can be used in any apparatus including a motor vehicle.

With regard to claim 6, Applicants argue that since the admitted prior art's (the secondary reference) switch has structural disadvantages, the combination the admitted prior art with Myers (the primary reference) would not be successful.

However, the rejection states that not the switch, as whole, is incorporated into the Myers, but only the resilient member (60) at the end of the tab terminal. The modified Myers would be free of the admitted prior art shortcomings.

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
